

Outpost Ranger of the Year

ROTY Application Information: The commander and/or parent can assist the boy in filling out the form correctly. The chart on the first page of the application will determine how the boy qualifies to be an Outpost Ranger of the Year. Boys are encouraged to earn the Outpost Ranger of the Year recognition in every year based on the qualification chart. The commander or parent should review the goal setting section of the application to help the boy set advancement, leadership development, and service goals for each year in Rangers.

NOTE: There is no limit to the number of boys who can earn the title “Outpost Ranger of the Year.” There is no “testing” ingredient in the Outpost ROTY program. It is based on boys setting individual goals based on pre-determined criteria with a reward system for doing so. Rather than spending time reviewing and studying material already learned preparing for a testing phase, the boys can focus on continuous learning and completion of the advancement track for their age group.
